

Letter to a Character

Dear Max,

Hello, Max. I am Haein Jeong, an enthusiastic reader of your story!

I'm sorry to hear that you broke up with Stephany. I know how you would feel when you found out that she betrayed you and when you decided to say goodbye to whom you'd loved the most in the world. But I ensure you that you needed the parting for your happiness in the end. You thought Stephany is the right person you've dreamed of, but now you know she wasn't, and I believe it was a heaven-sent opportunity that she reveled herself before you live with or marry her. Imagine that you realized her fickleness a year after your marriage! How dreadful it would be!

To speak frankly, I had experienced a man just like Stephany (he contacted his ex-girlfriend and had a complicated relationship with one of his girl friend while associating with me), so as an experiencer, I know that people who enjoy having affairs never change because they are programmed not to have a serious relationship. However, don't be depressed that you loved that kind of girl. The world is wide and there are plenty of good women!

I hope you hang out with the one who only loves you and be happy. Take care!

Sincerely yours,

Haein
