Hi, Ruth

It's me, Yejin. I'm sorry for sending a late reply to your latest letter. I have been in a rush these days to complete a launching project at my work. I couldn't do any errands for over a week.

Well, anyway, let's talk about you. I was glad to hear that you and Carlo are getting better than before. I remembered that his just good friend, Stephany had planned to stay at your cottage for several days, didn't she? I could assume that there were no disturbing issues which made you feel nervous or upset. Am I correct? I hope you don't get stressed anymore. By the way, be sure to keep a close eye on them, especially to Stephany. She may try to contact Carlo even after coming back to her place. We all know she's kind of a needy person. She might need his attention and also your nervousness to make her feel superior to you.

Ruth, to be honest, I've always worried about you after your decision to settle down in Italy. Because whenever I contact you, you look unhappy with everything around you. Hey my bestie, I know you well. You are the most perfect woman among the people who I know. I've never seen a person like you who is so smart, adorable, and attractive. That is, you don't need to get stressed with Carlo and his family, and even his bad friend. Your family and friends are always with you. To us, your happiness is the first and the most important. Then, I hope you do the same as us.

Take care and keep safe!

Best,

Yejin
